INTEGRITY-BASED COMMUNICATIONS: USING TRUTH TO BUILD HIGH-TRUST RELATIONSHIPS

Leveraging her talents as a leader, consultant, communications coach, writer, speaker, and facilitator, SHELLEY PAGE BAUR has transcended the popular notion of integrity as a measure of value and an alignment tool. Integrity is the cornerstone of her business model. She is best known as the brand architect of INTEGRITY-BASED COMMUNICATIONS (IBC), an educational platform by which she advances a methodology and philosophy geared toward honest, authentic communication. Widely considered an agent of transformational change, Shelley's core values encompass values-driven leadership, personal empowerment, and spirituality.

Unique in her approach, Shelley is an engaging and highly sought-after consultant and speaker whose impact is felt at all organizational levels. Laser-focused on creating and measuring positive, observable change, Shelley leverages open classroom discussion, video-driven instruction, and one-on-one coaching to translate the IBC process into action. In spreading her message of integrity and motivating others to think about the impact they make with words, actions, and gestures, Shelley raises the bar and leads by example.

Shelley Baur partners with companies and organizations to create a culture of integrity. She is a thoughtful and responsive corporate consultant who excels at assessing the client's needs and customizing the appropriate workplace programs. Shelley's flexibility in instructional design and her orientation toward strong results are evident at every turn. She is vigilant in tracking performance as the learning evolves, the ability to course-correct on the fly, and identifying employees who truly want to improve and align with their integrity. A quick builder of trust, Shelley is adept at confronting and overcoming negativity and creating the "aha" moment.

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

Shelley teaches how to establish a personal presence, whether in front of a group or at an intimate dinner; how to hold an interesting, impactful conversation with an audience, a small group or a single person; how to show respect by listening, getting to the point, and doing what you say... filling the critical gap not covered by speechwriters and image coaches.

To write a book titled Integrity-Based Communications could be dangerous for some people, but not for Shelley Baur. She truly walks the talk as a model for integrity. Delightfully, she generously pokes fun at her own life by default...before she began 'Living on Purpose.' Shelley is the mirror reflection for anyone attending a keynote speech, lunch & learn seminar, or coaching session with her. I know, because I have experienced all three situations, and have become better person each time.

INTEGRITY-BASED COMMUNICATIONS: USING TRUTH TO BUILD HIGH-TRUST RELATIONSHIPS

About the Book

Integrity-Based Communications (IBC) is a relationship improvement process emphasizing positive values that respect and honor all people...an ideal tool for leaders who want to empower the next generation of leaders. Integrity-Based Communications can become the foundation for implementing ethics and compliance throughout an organization...a respectful methodology for giving and receiving effective feedback, appropriate intervention, and intentionally managing one's career progression. Skills acquired include fine-tuning empathetic listening, speaking and behavior; self-awareness that leads to consistent, quicker, truth telling; discovering the elements necessary to achieve win-win solutions; embracing personal responsibility; and giving/receiving accountability for the consequences of one's choices and actions.

Outcomes include creating a culture of less stress, healthier relationships, and transformation of people, teams to achieve maximum organizational effectiveness. In both personal and professional settings, IBC is an ideal model for building high-performance teams by developing high-trust relationships. Effectively using the six behaviors of IBC helps to integrate ways of thinking, communicating and behaving that consistently reflect the highest standards of ethical choices to achieve personal and organizational goals.
